

Did you know small businesses have $825 billion in unpaid invoices?

We looked at 12 months of our data, and what we found was eye-opening.
Read on to see what happens when small businesses are paid slowly.

Most small businesses in the United States wait 21 days to get paid.

For some, it takes much longer.

On average, they have only 27 days of cash reserves. This leaves little wiggle room.

All of these unpaid invoices add up.

The average small business has $84k in unpaid invoices.

81%

are 30 days past due.

1 bill = $10k

Some industries are waiting on even more:

This may not seem like much, but there are 29.6 million small businesses in America employing about half of the U.S. workforce.

We estimate that small businesses have

$825 BILLION IN UNPAID INVOICES

Compare that to these portions of the U.S. GDP:

It's pretty huge—equivalent to 5% of the GDP.

So, when you receive an invoice from a small business, think about their impact on the U.S. economy

AND PAY THEM.

Small business, big impact.
